

Refund Policy

Wordstrader.com has a 3-day auto-acceptance policy. You have three days or 72 hours (including weekends) to take action on an article once it has been submitted to you. If you don't request for revision or a refund within 72 hours, the article will be automatically transferred to you. There are no refunds available in such a case. You are responsible for requesting for revision or rejecting an article(s) as fast as possible (within 72 hours) after an article is submitted to you.

You may reject an article after one revision. You are entitled to a refund on rejected articles as long as it happens not more than 72 hours after submission. We reserve the copyright to rejected articles. You can't use rejected articles. If you use such articles, you risk a permanent ban and serious legal action. Please note we constantly scan the web to trace rejected articles. Wordstrader.com has a ZERO tolerance policy on dishonesty and malicious intent.

To request for a refund, send an email to info@wordstrader.com with the subject as REFUND and text/body as the refund amount and your preferred PayPal address. Most refunds are completed within a week (1-7days). Refund requests must however comply with our refund policy and terms of use guidelines before they are processed and released to clients.

The logo for Wordstrader, featuring the word "Wordstrader" in a bold, white, sans-serif font, centered within a light blue rectangular background.